SILVER STAR—Awards-----	I
LEGION OF MERIT—Awards-----	II
SOLDIER'S MEDAL—Awards-----	III
BRONZE STAR MEDAL—Awards-----	IV, V

I. SILVER STAR.—By direction of the President, under the provisions of the act of Congress approved 9 July 1918 (Bul. 43, WD, 1918), the Silver Star for gallantry in action during the periods indicated is awarded to the following-named officers and enlisted men:

Corporal Ronald P. Allan. Australian New Guinea Administrative Unit, exhibited gallantry in action against an enemy of the United States near Seisle, Bougainville, Solomon Islands, on 31 October 1944. Accompanying a reconnaissance patrol with an American officer, a soldier, and two native guides, while crossing a wide stream, they were fired on by the enemy concealed on the far bank and the officer was wounded seriously. Ten yards from shore, and exposed to fire, Corporal Allan held his position and drew the enemy's fire until the wounded officer could be carried to cover. He then withdrew, and, though wounded, assisted in carrying the officer several hundred yards over rugged terrain to a more secure area. Sending a native boy for help, he administered aid to the wounded officer. Corporal Allan's brave actions in diverting hostile fire until the wounded officer could be removed reflect credit on himself and the military service.

Major General E. L. Bois. British Army, exhibited gallantry in action against an enemy of the United States during airborne landings in the European Theater on 24 March 1945.

Brigadier General K. Bourne, British Army, exhibited gallantry in action against an enemy of the United States during airborne landings in the European Theater on 24 March 1945.

Brigadier General S. J. L. Hill. British Army, exhibited gallantry in action against an enemy of the United States during airborne landings in the European Theater on 24 March 1945.

Captain Joseph J. Scarson. Australian New Guinea Administrative Unit, exhibited gallantry in action in New Guinea on 4 July 1944. When an advanced base was needed for the location of important signal equipment, it was necessary to send a patrol to determine whether the area desired was occupied by the enemy. Captain Scarson volunteered to act as interpreter and to control the native scouts on the reconnaissance patrol sent to Tarawai Island, north of But, New Guinea. When the group, consisting of six men, landed at dawn, it encountered about 20 enemy troops and engaged in a fire fight with them. Although his mission with the patrol was as interpreter only, he took a prominent part in the combat action and assisted in making a safe withdrawal to a waiting PT boat. Through his gallantry in volunteering to accompany the patrol on a hazardous mission and his courage in combat with the enemy, Captain Scarson contributed much to the securing of vital operational intelligence.

Major General T'ang Shou-Chin, Chinese Army in India, in the North Burma Campaign, displayed gallantry at Namyu, Kaihtik, and Namhkam, from 1 December 1944 to 15 January 1945. As commanding general of the 30th Division, Chinese Army in India, he, at the risk of his life, chose to direct operations in the front lines under heavy enemy fire and unusual hazards of terrain. By personal leadership and brilliant generalship, he inspired his troops in the speedy capture of and sweeping victories at Namyu, Kaihtik, and Namlikum. The courage and devotion to duty displayed by General T'ang reflect highest credit on himself and exemplify the highest traditions of the Chinese armed forces.

Squadron Leader John A. Bosman, Royal Air Force. January 1943 to March 1945.

III..SOLDIER'S MEDAL.—By direction of the President, under the provisions of the act of Congress approved 2 July 1926 (Bul. 8, WD, 1926), the Soldier's Medal for heroism not involving actual conflict with an enemy during the periods indicated is awarded to the following-named officer and enlisted men:

Corporal FianLau McRae, Royal Australian Air Force, displayed heroism at Port Moresby, New Guinea, on 18 October 1943. When an airplane crashed into a hillside, with two companions, he rushed toward the burning aircraft in an attempt to remove the trapped pilot. Unmindful of danger from fire and explosion, he worked his way to the cockpit of the airplane and, aided by his companions, succeeded in unfastening the safety belt and removing the body of the pilot. In risking his life in an attempt to save a comrade in arms, Corporal McRae demonstrated great and outstanding heroism.

Corporal Laurence J. Milligan (then leading aircraftsman), Royal Australian Air Force, displayed heroism at Port Moresby, New Guinea, on 18 October 1943. When an airplane crashed into a hillside, he, with two companions, rushed toward the burning aircraft in an attempt to remove the trapped pilot. Unmindful of danger from fire and explosion, he worked his way to the cockpit of the airplane and, aided by his companions, succeeded in unfastening the safety belt and removing the body of the pilot. In risking his life in an attempt to save a comrade in arms, Corporal Milligan demonstrated great and outstanding heroism.

Captain John H. Pawson, Australian Imperial Forces, displayed heroism near Lokanu Point, New Guinea, on 14 August 1943. As liaison officer to a United States infantry regiment, he volunteered to rescue the survivors of an American bomber which had crashed in enemy-controlled waters northeast of Dot Island. With two other volunteers he proceeded in a small boat to the crash area. Constantly within range of enemy machine-gun, mortar, and small-arms fire, he first located a life raft abandoned by the survivors. Then, continuing his search, he located the airplane, recovered the survivors, and returned them safely to Nassau Bay. Captain Pawson's voluntary and courageous action was responsible for saving the lives of three members of a bomber crew.

Leading Aircraftsman John Roberts, Royal Australian Air Force, displayed heroism at Port Moresby, New Guinea, on 18 October 1943. When an airplane crashed into a hillside, he, with two companions, rushed toward the burning aircraft in an attempt to remove the trapped pilot. Unmindful of danger from fire and explosion, he worked his way to the cockpit of the airplane and, aided by his companions, succeeded in unfastening the safety belt and removing the body of the pilot. In risking his life in an attempt to save a comrade in arms, Leading Aircraftsman Roberts demonstrated outstanding heroism.

V. BRONZE STAR MEDAL.—By direction of the President, under the provisions of Executive Order 9419, 4 February 1944 (sec. II, Bul. 3, WD, 1944), the Bronze Star Medal for heroic achievement in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States during the periods indicated is awarded to the following-named officers and enlisted men:

Second Lieutenant Marciano Achanzar, O28905, Philippine Army, a member of Company B, 11th Infantry, Philippine Army, distinguished himself by heroic achievement, on 28 December 1941, at Nueva Ecija, Philippine Islands. Detailed to guard a bridge near Zaragoza, he moved his platoon along a stream valley under cover, from where he was able to attack an enemy column in flank. Although greatly outnumbered, his surprise attack threw the enemy into great confusion. Thereafter, he deployed his men and held the bridge against a strong counterattack until all friendly troops had passed over. He then supervised its destruction. Through his heroic leadership, Lieutenant Achanzar made possible the safe withdrawal of a truck column carrying supplies desperately needed by the American-Filipino forces.

Flight Lieutenant Harry Belcher, Royal Australian Air Force, distinguished himself by heroic achievement at Manus Island, Admiralty Group, on 25 March 1944. He commanded a bomb disposal unit attached to an American cavalry brigade advancing near Lorengau Village. A narrow road, forming the only route of advance for tanks, was blocked by a mine field covered by heavy small-arms fire from well-entrenched enemy positions. Flight Lieutenant Belcher voluntarily crawled alone across the exposed road and located and removed the mines. By his intrepidity in the face of grave danger, he opened a route for a tank attack.

Sergeant Wallis W. Brown, Australian New Guinea Administrative Unit, distinguished himself by heroic achievement at Bougainville, Solomon Islands, from 20 July to 3 August 1944. While attached to American forces, with native scouts, on two occasions he led patrols with marked success. He conducted one patrol deep into hostile territory to investigate enemy activity in the village of Sisivie. Moving along trails unknown to the enemy, the patrol took hostile troops completely by surprise and killed 20 of the enemy. Leading a second patrol to observe results of an air strike, Sergeant Brown discovered an occupied bivouac area, guided his patrol silently into firing position, and attacked and destroyed over 20 troops.

Captain (temporary) John E. Flynn, Australian Imperial Forces, distinguished himself by heroic achievement near Sanananda, New Guinea, on 19 January 1943. He acted as forward observer for Australian artillery supporting an American attack on a strongly organized enemy defensive position. With complete disregard for personal safety, he made his way through heavy enemy sniper fire to a point well in advance of the American lines. Although wounded, he remained at his post and so successfully coordinated and directed the artillery fire that enemy resistance was completely overcome. Captain Flynn's courageous leadership was a material factor in the success of the Sanananda operation.

Captain K. A. M. Hirschel, Australian Imperial Forces, distinguished himself by heroic achievement in connection with military operations against the enemy near Sanananda, New Guinea, from 13 to 19 January 1943. As observer for an Australian artillery unit, he repeatedly moved in advance of the most forward American troops to direct an artillery barrage against enemy positions. Although subjected to machine-gun and sniper fire, he remained within 35 yards of forward enemy positions. By his coolness and daring, Captain Hirschel made a substantial contribution to the successful support of the Sanananda operations.
