HEADQUARTERS
DEPARTMENT OF THE ARMY
WASHINGTON, DC, 28 January 1994GENERAL MATTHEW B. RIDGWAY

The death of General Matthew Bunker Ridgway former Chief of Staff, United States Army, on 26 July 1993 in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, is reported with deep regret.

General Ridgway was an officer of the highest ideals. His courage, sound judgement, and superb leadership produced brilliant military achievements of the greatest value to his country. With his passing the nation has lost a faithful, valiant servant and the United States Army, a commander of great stature.

General Matthew Bunker Ridgway was born at Fort Monroe, Virginia on March 3, 1895, son of Army Colonel Thomas Ridgway. He graduated from the United States Military Academy in April 1917 and commissioned a second lieutenant of Infantry.

In June 1917 he was assigned to the 3d Infantry at Camp Eagle Pass, Texas, where he served successively as a Company Commander, Regimental Adjutant and Commander of the Regimental Headquarters Company. In September 1918 he was assigned to the United States Military Academy as an instructor of Spanish. He remained at the academy where he became the Executive for Athletics and in July 1922 was appointed Graduate Manager of Athletics.

General Ridgway joined the Company Officers course at the Infantry School, Fort Benning, Georgia in September 1924. Following graduation, he was assigned as a company commander of the 15th Infantry at Tientsin, China. In the summer of 1926 he was ordered to Fort Sam Houston, Texas, to command Company E, 9th Infantry, later becoming Regimental Adjutant of the 9th Infantry.

From December 1927 until December 1928, General Ridgway was on duty with the American Electoral Commission in Nicaragua. In January 1929 he was stationed in Washington, DC on the Commission of Inquiry and Conciliation pertaining to the Bolivian-Paraguayan boundary dispute. In September 1929, he began the Advanced Course at the Infantry School at Fort Benning, and graduated in June 1930. He then returned to Nicaragua for further duty with the American Electoral Commission.

GO 3

In December 1930 General Ridgway was sent to Fort Clayton, Panama Canal Zone, for duty with the 33d Infantry. In the spring of 1932 he was assigned as Liaison Officer to the Insular Government in the Philippine Islands. There he served as technical advisor to Governor General Theodore Roosevelt, Jr.

In August 1933, General Ridgway entered the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas and graduated in June 1935. In July of the same year, he was detailed to the General Staff Corps and assigned as Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, Sixth Corps Area, Chicago, Illinois. In August 1936 he served as Deputy Chief of Staff, Second Army. He entered the Army War College in 1937, and upon completion in 1937, he went to the Presidio of San Francisco for duty as Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, of the Fourth Army.

In May 1939, he accompanied General George C. Marshal, then Chief of Staff Designate, to Brazil for a special mission, and in September of the same year until January 1942, he was assigned to the War Department General Staff for duties with the War Plans Division.

In March 1942, General Ridgway was designated Assistant Commanding General of the 82d Infantry Division and later became Commanding General in June 1942. He was in command when the division was redesignated 82d Airborne, in August 1942. In April 1943, he led the division to North Africa where he was responsible for planning and executing the first large-scale airborne assault in the history of the Army—the attack on Sicily. He led his division in its rapid conquest of the western half of that island. He continued to lead the 82d Airborne Division in the Italian Campaign. In June 1944, he parachuted at night with leading elements of the division into Normandy, where he played a major role in the invasion of Western France. In August 1944, he was selected to command the XVIII Airborne Corps where he directed operations in the Ardennes Campaign in Belgium, the crossing of the Rhine, the Ruhr Pocket, the crossing of the Elbe and the advance to junction with Russian forces on the Baltic on May 1945.

General Ridgway returned to the United States with his Corps in August 1945 for redeployment to the Pacific. The same month he was flown to the Philippines in advance of the XVIII Airborne Corps to prepare for its participation in the proposed invasion of Japan.

In September 1945, General Ridgway was assigned to command the Mediterranean Theater of Operations and was appointed Deputy Supreme Allied Commander, Mediterranean.

General Ridgway became the United States Army Representative on the Military Staff Committee, United Nations in January 1946, representing General of the Army, Dwight D. Eisenhower. He was first in London, then in New York City. In March 1946, he received the additional duty of Senior U.S. Delegate to the Inter-American Defense Board and assumed chairmanship of the Board.

In June 1948, General Ridgway was assigned as Commander-in-Chief, Caribbean Command, at Quarry Heights, Canal Zone. In September 1949 he was transferred to Washington, DC, and became Deputy Chief of Staff for Administration, U.S. Army, and in November 1950 assumed the additional duty as Chairman, Inter-American Defense Board.

General Ridgway was transferred to the Far East Command in December 1950 and assumed command of the Eighth Army in Korea.

On April 11, 1951, he was appointed Supreme Commander for Allied Powers, Commander-in-Chief of the United Nations Command in the Far East and Commander-in-Chief of the Far East Command in Japan, succeeding General of the Army Douglas MacArthur. President Truman nominated him for promotion to the rank of General on May 9, 1951; his nomination confirmed by the Senate the following day, and he was officially appointed a General on May 11, 1951.

In May 1952, General Ridgway succeeded General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower as Supreme Commander, Allied Powers, Europe, with his headquarters in Paris, France. During this assignment he furthered the development of the elements of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization into an efficient team and strengthened the bonds of friendship and cooperation among the many nations serving together in the common defense of democratic principles.

On August 15, 1953 he was appointed Chief of Staff, United States Army. Under his direction the Army was maintained in a state of combat readiness and fulfilled its world-wide commitments in a manner which contributed significantly to the advancement of the foreign policies of the United States.
